Dear [redacted]

STAT

I have explored the various possibilities concerning your return to the mainland on an informal level here in Washington. I did not desire to present your case formally, so that I could avoid bringing up the fact that [redacted] is in our employ, which, as you know, is contrary to CIA policy. I believe, however, that the information which I have obtained is sufficient for our purposes and is reliable.

STAT

In the first place, the contracts which both you and [redacted] have will be honored. You can be returned to the States. If you are returned to the States for reassignment, [redacted] cannot be employed by the Central Intelligence Agency, and, since her employment is in violation of CIA policy, it would be necessary to return her to the States for the purpose of termination of employment. You, of course, could be returned to the States under the reorientation policy and sent back to Kauai, in which case it would appear to me that it would be necessary for you to pay the expense of getting your family back to Kauai, and there is no assurance that we could again employ [redacted] after her return.

STAT

I have wired [redacted] today in an effort to ascertain your desires in this matter so that we can plan accordingly. I do not know at this point whether your reassignment would be at Reseda, California, or Silver Hill, Maryland, and do not plan to explore it further until I have heard from you.

STAT

I regret very much that I cannot relay more favorable information to you, particularly as regards the return to the States and re-employment of [redacted]
